OREGON State Insane and Idiotic Asylum.
DRS. HAWTHORNE & LORRAIN,
PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS,
Having been appointed by the Governor, with the consent of the present Legislative Assembly, a Trustee of the Oregon State Insane Asylum, also a Physician to the Asylum for this county, Drs. Hawthorne & Lorrain, Physicians and Surgeons,

The Project of the above Establishment will commence immediately by additions to their present buildings, in order to offer accommodations to all who are unfortunate enough to need the care and treatment of an Insane or Idiotic Asylum.

In case of the requisition on the part of County Judges, Guardians and friends of this class of patients, to have them immediately conveyed to the Asylum, it is hoped that they will be promptly gratified, before the inclement weather sets in.

THE INDIGENT WILL BE SUPPORTED AT THE EXPENSE OF THE STATE, and no record of debt made against them.

For Terms, &c., apply to Drs. HAWTHORNE & LORRAIN, Physicians of the Oregon State Insane & Idiotic Asylum.
Portland, Multnomah county, Oct. 10, 1864.

WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.
We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:
It forms a first class seam which will not rip in wear.
It is entirely noiseless.
A patent device prevents its being turned backward.
The needle cannot be set wrong.
Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machines.
It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863, for the best machine, regardless of OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

No Flag but the Gold Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the star of a thousand days to guide you!

TUESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 28, 1865.

Church and State.

The American people have ensured much to secure to themselves and to their children, to the fullest extent, the exercise of civil and religious freedom. From the first it has been an established principle of our Government that our shores should offer to all kindred and tongues, of at least the Caucasian race, the full and free exercise of liberty of conscience, and while we adopt such laws as the majority, under the Constitution, may ordain for our government as a State, it is embodied in the fundamental law ordained alike by the representatives of Puritan, Huguenot and Cavalier, that the consciences of our citizens shall be free.

Among us there is no invidious distinction of religious creed or doctrine. Here the Jew rears his Synagogue, the Romanist his Cathedral, and every other denomination of the Christian faith builds up for its use such edifice as it chooses for the worship of God. There is no prejudice for or against the one or the other; no proclaimed preference, and for ourselves at least, we can say that, in accordance with the spirit of the Constitution, we accord to each and every system of faith, honestly entertained, the consideration that each deserves. We would, if possible, aid in so controlling the public mind from fanaticism or bitter prejudice, and while having our own views, still reside to each sect and belief, that measure of justice each merits by sincerity of faith.

The world had almost learned to believe that the church of Rome, in the person of Pope Pio Nino, the present occupant of its apostolic chair, had become, in a measure, liberalized, and the world, as a consequence, was the more inclined to forget its centuries of jealousy, and welcome, as a mark of the progress of the age, the appearance of liberal ideas in the priesthood. But these hopes were ill-grounded, if the late encyclical letter issued from the Vatican to the "patriarchs, primates, archbishops and bishops in communion with the Apostolic See," is to receive the first consideration. This circular derives peculiar importance from the fact that among a host in Oregon, as everywhere else throughout our country, the Roman Catholic priesthood are welcome guests, and the members of the church are as fully and as freely protected in their rights and in the exercise of their belief as are any other citizens. Among us are "primates" revered for their worth, priests respected for their self-denying labors, and schools fondled by Sisters of Charity, that have won their way to public gratitude by unceasing labors for those committed to their care. We had believed that these persons had some appreciation of the privileges that they, in common with all others, enjoy upon our soil; but this belief scarce accords with the spirit of [illegible] ably denouncing the principles of civil and religious liberty, and asserting that the dogmas of one church supreme should control the nations of a world.

Setting aside all the comments of the press, we have waited until this document was placed before us in full, that we might read the whole of it, and judge it by a comparison of the whole, and not by reading of any one part. As an entirety, it sounds one single note, declaiming it to be a heresy, that any power can conflict with the authority of the Roman Pontiff as head of the Roman Church. We give the following extract:

"For, as you are well aware, venerable brethren, there are a great number of men in the present day who, applying to civil society the impious and absurd principle of naturalism, as it is called, dare to teach 'that the perfect right of public society and civil progress absolutely require a condition of human society, and a government conducted and governed without regard to all considerations of religion, as if it had no existence, or at least without making any distinction between the religion and heresy. And, contrary to the teaching of the Holy Scriptures, of the Church and of the Fathers, they do not hesitate to affirm 'that the best condition of society is that in which the power of the laity is not compelled to inflict the penalties of law upon violators of the Catholic religion unless required by considerations of public safety.' Actuated by an idea of social government so absolutely false, they do not hesitate further to propagate this erroneous opinion, very hurtful to the safety of the Catholic Church and of souls, and termed 'delirium' by our predecessor, Gregory XVI., of excellent memory, viz.: 'Liberty of conscience and of worship is the right of every man—a right which ought to be proclaimed and established by law in every well constituted State; and that citizens are entitled to make known and declare, with a liberty which neither the ecclesiastical nor the civil authority can limit, their convictions, of whatever kind, either by word of mouth, or through the press, or by other means.' But in making these rash assertions they do not reflect, they do not consider that they preach the liberty of perdition, [St. Augustine, Epistle 105 al. 166] and that 'if it is always free to bring conviction to disease, man will never be wanting who dare to struggle against the truth, and to rely upon the loquacity of human wisdom, when we know by the lips of our Lord Jesus Christ how faith and Christian sagacity ought to avoid this very culpable vanity.'

This applies, of course, to all the world outside the pale of the Roman Catholic Church; and we must unite with the general expression of the press throughout the United States, in saying, that if doctrines so hostile to and incompatible with our institutions prevails, it is time the American people knew of it.

Were these things said to the European powers who acknowledge the Church? Surely such an enunciation was scarcely necessary. Was it not intended to act upon independent governments who do not acknowledge it? The question is open for those to whom it was addressed to answer. We have no fears that the Roman priesthood in our midst will incite their flocks to revolution, though the words of his Holiness are strongly indicative of a necessity that there should be a greater change than he can expect to effect by a fulmination from the papal chair. The independent press of Catholic Europe treat the encyclical letter with great freedom, and we close with the following extract from the Paris, Temps, a Catholic paper:

The first impression felt is one of surprise, mingled with amusement. To hear without smiling that banal rhetoric, those stereotype fulmination, and long quotations which prove nothing, is impossible. Who would have the heart to be angry at these pretensions of another age, so simple, puerile and confiding as they are? The world is escaping from the Church, and the Church in the person of its chief, continues to scold and menace as if he had still the sword of the princes of the earth at his service. Listen to the enfeebled voice trying to make itself heard in the midst of the thousand noises of the age. It is addressed to a state of society deeply modified by the French Revolution. People have lost even the memory of the times when the Vicar of God governed nations according to the teachings of revelation. Faith no longer is the general condition of the public mind, and the Church has been forced to seek in the duties of the citizen the support which is no longer found in the submission of the believer. The fundamental article of the modern political Credo is, that the Church is only free and voluntary [illegible]

McCarver.—The Story of [illegible] was [illegible] over a portion of the country during the Winter, etc., and his house had not been a close, stopped at a block woods, black smith shops to have one to shoes. While waiting he casually inquired where the smith procured his [illegible] and was told that he [illegible] and [illegible] the fact that mountains of it abounded in the region about them. Boulders of almost pure metal, and pieces that were forged from it in the shape of nails, rods, shoes, etc., gradually came to light and people became very much interested in the matter. About three years since [illegible] was sent to California, Mr. R. D. Green, to experiment; and after a thorough test was found to yield from 95 to 60 per cent. as pure and excellent iron as the world could produce for. Since that time, [illegible] have been continued with relief, and success to a site for smelting furnaces, to enter upon the work on a grand scale, and being successfully accomplished. There has been an organization perfected, and articles of [illegible] were filed last week for "The Oregon Iron Company." The principal office is located at Oswego, nine miles above the city, on Clackamas county. The incorporators are: H. D. Green, W. S. Ladd and John Green. The capital stock of the company is $500,000, in shares of $500. Six hundred and fifty shares, or $325,000 of the capital stock, was taken on Saturday by [illegible] of a preponderant citizens and [illegible] capitalists in New York. The balance of the $500,000 will probably be taken in San Francisco, as the entire amount will be in the hands of twenty share holders, or possibly less than that number. There are many advantages for the successful operation of this important enterprise, and we are pleased to know that the work of erecting buildings, etc., will be commenced immediately by the company. The water power secured by the company at the immediate vicinity of the ore beds is ample for all purposes required. The [illegible] of ore are such that in the smelting process there is no necessity for the use of lime, and as the company have in exhaustible supplies of timber upon their lands, from which an excellent quality of charcoal can be had, the manufacture of iron will be attended with no extraordinary expense in that respect; besides, they will have excellent facilities for shipping their products to market, no land transportation being necessary, as vessels of the largest class which come to the [illegible] can lay at wharves within less than one eighth of a mile of the furnaces to receive their cargoes. Such are the features which promise success, to a most important enterprise, and bid fair to make Oswego the Pittsburg of the Pacific coast.

Handsome Residences.—That Portland is entitled to boast of some elegant residences, in addition to the fine business houses erected last year, is evident to all who are disposed to view the subject. Many of these were unfinished and unpeopled at the beginning of the present year, and some are so still, but they are fast approaching a finish, and two of them have been inspected by us, which is the theme of our comment. The principal material in the composition of our buildings is wood, notwithstanding which they are of a very superior style of workmanship. Mr. S. L. Smith has quite recently occupied his fine residence, on Third street between Washington and Stark streets, planned by Mr. E. M. Burton, and built by Messrs. Curson & Porter. The building is two and a half stories, with a commodious basement, and is finished in the most approved method. The main floor has four large rooms, besides the entrance, with 16 feet ceiling, and the kitchen, arranged with a cooking range, patent water-heating apparatus, etc. The second floor has six rooms, including a bathing room, and is 13 feet in the clear. It is a very convenient and comfortable home, constructed at an expense of about $7,000. Mr. [illegible] M. Starr has one next that of Mr. Smith, which is now nearly complete, being built by Mr. Wm. Berk, under a plan of Mr. A. B. Hallock, when it will cost about $8,000. L. E. Gruver, Esq., has introduced the fresco painting to adorn the walls and ceiling of his new residence, and it is very fine. There are in contemplation at the present time not less than one hundred new residences, for construction the coming summer.

A Relic of Time.—A few days since, as the barks Helen W. Almy and W. B. Scranton lay off Jim Crow Point at anchor, just above Pillar Rock, in the Columbia river, Captains Freeman, Gilman, Johnson, Miller and others, were seized with an ambition to scale the heights of the mountain bluffs, and while the crew were engaged in taking on board a quantity of dry wood, the party set out on a "voyage of discovery," among the rocks and tall pines. They found some difficulty in making the ascent, but in an altitude of some two or three thousand feet, [illegible] the "blaze" on a tree that others had preceded them. A short distance farther up, and they found the following, written in pencil on the bark of a small tree, as will be seen by the date, nearly eight years ago:

Astoria 12th, 1857.

"O, Solitude, where is the charm
That sages have spoken of by here?
Better dwell in the midst of alarm,
Than to reign in this horrible place.
"Frank Wiggin."

We have the bark and shall present it to the historical collection we can find in Oregon, as having withstood the mark of Time so long without obliterating the mark of [illegible] Enos No. 2.

Theatre.—Last evening terminated the engagement of the Irwins, and it was made the occasion of a benefit to the worthy actor Mr. S. M. Irwin, who, with his estimable lady and native youth, have won much favor in the hearts of our public. We regret very much that the inclement weather did not permit a larger turn out. This evening no performance will be given. To-morrow evening the tragedy of "Othello" will be produced. Mr. Taylor as Othello, Mr. Waldron as Iago, with Mrs. Macdonald, Mrs. Leslie, Miss Belle Divine, Messrs. Leslie, Graham, Shields, and the original company.

A Charitable Case.—Dr. Shone represents to us that a family are living in distress, in the First Ward, and that there is a necessity for affording them immediate relief. The inmate of the unfortunate family is Smith. Drs. Gibson and Shone are attending their medical wants, and we would urge upon our good people the propriety of administering for their comfort in things needful.

Circuit Court.—In Circuit Court [illegible] motions in arrest of judgment, in the case of the State vs. Scott, were overruled, and the prisoner was sentenced to the Penitentiary for the term of three years. The case of Brannan vs. Elwert, et al., action on building contract, was given to the jury last evening.

New.—We have telegraphic news in abundance this morning. If anything more is wanted the reading public will find the usual amount of books, magazines, etc., at Burrell's News Depot, also, a full assortment of California and States' papers, with a spice of foreign thrown in.

Stock Transactions.—The Board of Brokers have so far done but little in mining stock transactions. On Saturday last real estate was placed on the regular list, nine lots were offered, but the principal bidding was in legal tender notes, opening at 50c, and closing at 51.

Lost Logs.—Mr. H. Parker, after being frozen in with us for a term of over two months, leaves this morning, by the steamer Wilson G. Hunt, for his home in Walla Walla. He has become quite well acquainted in Oregon during his imprisonment by order of the ice blockade.

Dr. DeWolf's Lectures.—His first and second lectures were crowded. To night he discourses on Physiognomy. The splendid gallery of portraits is worth the price of admission. The Doctor's consultation rooms are at No. 3, Pioneer Hotel, corner of Front and Washington.

Snow.—At twelve o'clock last night a carpet of snow covered our streets, and the roofs of our houses, to a depth of about one inch. Starlight and moderate temperature.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®
NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Twenty Years

THE PRESIDENT AND ROYALTY.—It is related of many years ago when the Prince of Wales was about to marry the Princess Alexandra, Queen Victoria sent a letter to each of the sovereigns, requesting them to have his heraldic, and among the rest to Brigham Lingolm, Lord Lyons, her ambassador at Washington, who, by the way, is unmarried, requested on the part of Lincoln, that he might present with important document to pass it. At the time appointed he was received at the White House in company with Seward.

"May it please your Excellency," said Lord Lyons, "I hold in my hand an autographic letter from my royal mistress, Queen Victoria, which I have been commanded to present to your Excellency. In it she informs your Excellency that her son, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, is about to contract a matrimonial alliance with her Royal Highness the Princess Alexandra, of Denmark." After continuing in this strain for a few minutes, Lord Lyons tendered the letter to the President and awaited his reply. It was short, simple and expressive, and consisted simply of these words: "Lord Lyons, go thou and do likewise."

This reminds me of a little story which had its origin in the State Department. One of the foreign Ministers hastened to the Secretary (Marcy) to inform him that his Royal Highness had been delivered of a "fine son," and to expatiate upon the importance of the "event." Marcy listened attentively to the narration, meantime leisurely refreshing his nose with snuff from his capacious box. At last he replied by saying, "however immense that birth was in the Minister's country, such things were, in the United States, of very frequent occurrence."

GEN. SCOTT'S OPINION OF GEN. TAYLOR.—With a good store of common sense, General Taylor's mind had not been enlarged and refreshed by reading or much converse with the world. Rigidity of ideas was the consequence. The frontier and guard posts life been his home. Hence he was quite ignorant for his rank, and quite bigoted in his ignorance. His simplicity was child-like, and with innumerable prejudices—amusing and incorrigible—well suited to the tender age. Thus, if a man, however respectable otherwise, to wear a coat of an unusual color, or his hat a little on one side of the head, or an officer to leave the corner of his handkerchief dangling from his outside pocket—in any such case this critic held the offenders to be a coxcomb—perhaps something worse; when the would not, to use his oft repeated phrase, "touch with a pair of tongs." Any allusion to literature much beyond good old Dilworth's spelling book on the part of one wearing a sword, was evidence, with the judge, of utter unfitness for heavy marchings and combats. In short, few men have ever had a more comfortable, labor-saving contempt for learning of every kind. Yet this old soldier and neophyte statesman had the true basis of a great character, pure, uncorrupted morals, combined with indomitable courage. Kind-hearted, sincere and hospitable in a plain way, he had no vices but prejudice, many friends, and left behind him not an enemy in the world, not even in the satirical grapher, whom in the blindness of his great weakness he, after being named for the Presidency, had seriously wronged. —Scott's Autobiography.

A HEROIC WOMAN.—A lady named Mrs. Catherine Williamson passed through Austin on Christmas day, en route for California, where she expects to join her husband. She started from St. Joseph, Missouri, in May last, accompanied by her two children. Her outfit consisted of a single yoke of oxen, a light wagon, and a scanty supply of provisions. Upon arriving at Denver she found her scanty means exhausted, and she was compelled to stop in order to earn money. She left Denver in June, accompanying some other emigrants, passed through numerous parties of Indians, then hostile to the whites, and arrived safely at Salt Lake City. There she was again compelled to stop for want of food, but some charitable soldiers assisted her, procured a pair of mules and some provisions, and she resumed her journey. She is again facing the storm and making the last struggle to meet her protector. Such women are worth all the gold in California.—Reville, Austin, Nevada.

A writer in Paris tells what he saw on a recent promenade, as follows:

I saw dear little scarlet, and lilac, and rose-colored, and sky-blue poodles, and I wondered from what foreign land they had been exported to be the spoiled pets of the ladies who lead the ton. But I look again and find that the fair ones in whose laps these favorites so luxuriously recline were at the same time in their ribbons as that which beautified (?) the dogs, and guessed (being a Yankee) that a new art had been exported to the emancipated. The dogs are dyed to match the toilette. Think of that!

An Irish family in Colchester, Count, were very much disturbed the other day by seeing their husband and father enter the house as they had a few days before paid one hundred and fifty dollars for the transportation home of his body from the army and buried him with many tears. It took some time for the Irishman to convince his family that he was not a ghost, and then they examined the dead body and sent it back to the army, fearing it might be the body of a rebel soldier.

A cruel practical joke was that of Mr. Lowe, the "mesmerist," who, in a recent lecture in the vicinity of Philadelphia, let drop a straw image of a man from his left hand, to a height of a little and a half. The individuals in the region, who were of somewhat nervous, watching the balmy, rushed headlong to the spot where the figure fell, and I presume did not feel greatly disappointed to find one cheap less from life than they expected.

Often it would be better to send the Virgin, with her warrant of redemption, to her lovers, or ignorant of the sufferings of life, her chosen ones were of fourth, which is Hell, than into the waste places of life.

The tomb is a house built for a skeleton; a dwelling of well-prepared marble provided for dust; and everything a monument set up to keep safe the memory of the forgotten.

The smaller the portion of the mind, the greater the desire of superficially open mouth.

The ashes of a cigar are little thought of—those of a man scarcely more.

THE OREGONIAN,

A

FIRST-CLASS POLITICAL AND FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

Published Daily and Weekly.

PROSPECTUS FOR THE FIFTEENTH VOLUME,

Commencing November 19th, 1864.

The character of the OREGONIAN, which has been rapidly tested for fourteen years, (being the oldest newspaper in the State,) has become so well established, and is so favorably known, that we hardly deem it necessary at the present time to announce that it will—with the commencement of the fifteenth volume—be a FIRST-CLASS INDEPENDENT FAMILY AND POLITICAL NEWSPAPER. We shall spare no effort to make further improvement and progress, and to render the OREGONIAN not only a complete compendium of current news and passing events, but also a pleasant and reliable companion and a faithful commercial guide. It will contain full reports of important naval, military and political movements, with Stories, Sketches, Poetry, Essays upon current topics, Correspondence from various sources and Telegraphic Dispatches up to the time of going to press.

It is the only paper in Oregon that gives full and complete Telegraphic Reports, and that receives them in their entirety, in full, expressly for its own columns.

The size of the WEEKLY is much enlarged with the commencement of the present volume, but the price will be still at the low sum of THREE-DOLLARS per annum, hoping thereby to secure an increase of circulation as a reward of our enterprise.

Our columns will be devoted to the advocacy of Union principles, and we hope by a candid and courteous discussion of political principles to command readers of every political complexion and the respect of all our readers.

We shall specially endeavor to conserve the interests and merit the patronage of the large and important mining regions of Idaho, Washington and our own Territory, by publishing all matters of interest relating thereto, and doing justice to their growth and importance, and shall endeavor to receive interesting and reliable correspondence from that section of country.

HARPER'S

NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Critical Notices of the Press.

It is the foremost Magazine of the day. The world has had a more delightful companion, nor one more ably conducted, than Harper's Magazine."—Methodist Protestant (Baltimore).

The most popular Monthly in the world.—New Yorker.

We cannot refer in terms of eulogy to the high varied excellence of HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—Boston Journal.

A monthly circulation of 17,000 copies—is to be found some of the choicest light and solid reading of the day. We speak of this work as one of the American People, and the popularity it has acquired entitled it. Each volume contains fully one thousand pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with wood-cuts; and it combines in itself the exactness of the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the lighter features of the daily journal. It has great power of discrimination of a taste of pure literature.—Boston Courier.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as cannot be had in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier.

CALIFORNIA SUBSCRIPTIONS,

Being desirous of extending the influence of its publications in this section, the publishers of HARPER'S MAGAZINE and WEEKLY will pay particular attention to subscriptions from the PACIFIC STATES, and subscribers may rely upon the prompt arrival of their Magazines.
